BABY IN THE GARBAGE

Shocking Crime Discovered at City Crematory.

INFANT WAS FROZEN SOLID

Had Been Thrown Into Refuse Barrel in the Alley.

Police Are on a Trail That They Are Confident Will Lead to Arrest of the Guilty Ones.

A piece of brown wrapping paper and a copy of the Deseret News are the only clues held by the police to a shocking crime discovered at the city garbage crematory last Thursday evening. In going over the refuse gathered by a wagon from the southwest quarter of the city the crematory attendants found a bundle wrapped in an old newspaper and tied with a piece of ordinary twine. On opening it they were horrified to discover the frozen body of an infant.

Dr. Stewart, the city physician, was informed of the discovery and promptly made an examination. He gave as his opinion that the child had been born alive, although premature. It was of the male sex and white. The physician would hazard no opinion as to the cause of death, though the circumstances led to the belief that the child died from asphyxiation, caused by smothering. As the body had been preserved by freezing, it was impossible to determine how long it had been exposed, but here the date of the paper, which formed the outer wrapping of the bundle, was of service. The date was December 12th. The inner wrapping was of brown manila paper, such as is ordinarily used to wrap dry goods, but it was without printing.

The driver of the wagon failed at first to remember where he got the bundle, but finally remembered that it came from a barrel in an alley off from West Temple street. Detective Raleigh was assigned to the case, visited the premises and questioned the owner. The old gentleman who lived there speedily satisfied the officer that neither he nor any of his household had seen the strange bundle.

The very fact that the baby was found in that barrel was taken as a strong indication that no one in the immediate neighborhood had placed it there. Places, and a small boy named Tommy Barker remembered having seen a man carry a bundle up the alley two days before Christmas. He noticed that it was wrapped in a newspaper, because he was on the lookout for Christmas presents, and decided that the bundle could not contain presents with such a wrapping.

The boy was unable to give a description of the man, but said that he was tall and had a black overcoat. He came from the east and turned into the alley from the south.

With this as a starter, the subscribers of the paper were looked up in that direction. All but two families were relieved from suspicion, but in two instances unmarried women had been left alone the time mentioned. One was at the home of a woman who occasionally receives patients to nurse.

The police have not yet collected enough evidence to justify an arrest, but they are working on the case with a view to learning the identity of the tall man with a bundle. The innocent cause of the exposure of the child is being investigated in the city cemetery.

AROUND ZERO MARK

New England Emerging From Blizzard's Clutch.

TRAFFIC STOPS IN BOSTON

Worst Storm Visits Coast Within Past Five Years.

Moves Eastward and Rages With Almost Unprecedented Violence Over the Maritime Provinces.

Boston, Jan. 3.—With the mercury hovering around the zero mark in this city and reaching an extreme of 35 degrees below in northern Maine, with a foot of snow piling up at exposed points in huge drifts that delayed railroad traffic, caused the abandonment of street railway schedule, and in many cases interfered with the street lighting systems, New England slowly emerged today from the clutches of the wildest blizzard that has swept this part of the country since the memorable storm of November, 1898.

The gale, accompanied by a blinding fall of snow, swept the coast from Newport, R. I., to Eastport, Me., until noon today.
When it moved eastward and tonight was raging with almost unprecedented violence over the maritime provinces. New Brunswick and Nova Scotia suffered the most.

Double patrols of life savers are watching the coast tonight as they have for the past thirty hours. Only one shipwreck is reported, that of a schooner, Belle J.
Neal, on Allerton bar, but late tonight a woman's body was washed ashore at Nantasket and it is feared that another vessel has been wrecked. There have been five deaths from exposure here last night.

At Nantucket the harbor of Shalsonett is frozen for the first time in several years. The supply of provisions is low and much anxiety is felt by the islanders.

With this as a starter, the subscribers of the paper were looked up in that direction. All but two families were relieved from suspicion, but in two instances unmarried women had been left alone the time mentioned. One was at the home of a woman who occasionally receives patients to nurse.

The police have not yet collected enough evidence to justify an arrest, but they are working on the case with a view to learning the identity of the tall man with a bundle. The innocent cause of the ex-posure of the child is being investigated in the city cemetery.

BITING COLD IN EAST.
Many Cases of Frostbite and Exhaustion Treated at New York Hospitals.

New York, Jan. 3.—Clear skies and bitting cold succeeded the snowstorm that raged all last night and yesterday, resulting in a total fall of from 8 to 10 inches, the heaviest of the season.

While there was little interruption of street car traffic today owing to the constant use of snow ploughs during the continuance of the storm, the service on railroads entering the city was badly crippled, several limited trains being from four to eight hours late.

Many cases of frostbite and exhaustion from exposure were treated at the hospitals. One man was found unconscious in a snowdrift in Second avenue and another was found frozen to death in a drift on Staten Island.

Mrs. Frances Jeannette, 75 years of age, was found near her home in Staten Island with her hands and face frozen. She was in various sections of New York State heavy snowfall and intensely cold weather prevailed today. Patchway traffic is much impeded and much difficulty is being experienced in operating trolley lines.

Famous Singer Arrived Yesterday,

Audience Tonight.

Patti and her party reached Salt Lake yesterday from Minneapolis, where she sang last Wednesday evening to one of the greatest audiences ever assembled there. In twenty-one concerts that have been given so far her share has been $20,000, and indicates, at the same general average for the remaining twenty-nine concerts, about $40,000 as the total amount of her receipts.

The soprano will have one of its biggest audiences at tonight's concert, the sale having been very heavy already, and it being expected that there will be a strong demand today.

WHERE BLIZZARDS RAGE.
Kansas City reports zero weather prevailing, the coldest of the season.

In Springfield, Ill., Sunday was the coldest of the season, the thermometer registering 10 degrees below zero.

Near Bad Axe, Mich., three boys aged about 10 years, the sons of fishermen, were frozen to death during Saturday night's terrific storm, being lost in the blinding storm.

Yesterday was the coldest of the season at the National capital, the mercury remaining around 3 degrees above zero nearly all day. The pavements, covered with ice, were as slippery as glass, and the usual was kept. Many accidents, in some cases resulting in broken limbs, occurred.

TELEGRAPH SHORT STOPS.

finest in the city of Indianapolis, burned

Story of Mark Twain's Youth.
The mother of Samuel L. Clemens ("Mark Twain") spent the last days of her life in Keokuk, Ia., at the home of another son, Orin Clemens, and his wife.
They lived in a plain, comfortable-looking house in one of the best residential sections of the city. The mother was a quiet country lawyer, highly respected in the community. He lived in Keokuk until his death, which occurred a number of years after that of his mother. Mrs.
Clemens, the mother, was a very small woman.

At the time I knew her she was over 70 years of age, bright and active for her years, and a great talker. Samuel must have inherited his flow of language from her.

Her neighbors and I loved to visit her and hear her talk in her quiet, old-fashioned way. She was very fond of talking about her brilliant and celebrated son, and relating stories of his early youth.

The father of her boys had died when they were small, leaving her with but little of this world's goods, and she felt the responsibility of their education. Keenly Samuel was the most mischievous of all her children, and caused her great anxiety.

I used to say to her, "Now, Mrs. Clemens, please tell me about your son Samuel, when he was a boy, and he would comply with evident pleasure.

"Samuel was a very bad little boy, and gave me more trouble than the rest of the children. I had a hard time to keep him from running away from home. One day he ran around a tree. I chased him round and round the tree with a stick in my hand, but couldn't catch him. He says he is going to pay me for all the trouble he caused me—but I think it will keep him pretty busy."

"But he is good to you," I said.
"Oh, yes, he is very good to me. He says that he has no evil in his heart." The incident of her trying to make Samuel go to school and chasing him round the tree lingered in the little mother's memory after many of the other events of her life had faded away—I daresay in Success.

RENDER THEIR ART VAIN

Counterfeiters Never Make a Perfect Plate.

SAME IS TRUE OF DIE
Strange Power Appears to Obtain Possession Men.

This Always at a Critical Moment in Their Work of Making Bogus Money.

Washington, Jan. 3.—"It is certain that a perfect counterfeit has never been made," said William P. Hazen, formerly chief of the Government secret service, speaking of the facility with which receiving tellers at banks detect spurious coin, and, strange as it may appear, with all the will and endeavor in the world the counterfeiters seem to be wholly unable to complete a perfect job, although they get many details of the bill or coin to absolute perfection.

RENDERS WORK USELESS.
"Some strange power appears to get possession of these criminals at a crucial moment in their fraudulent work and to render their art vain. The real reason for this I have never been able to fathom.
It may be physical. You may smile—some people will—but the criminals themselves, so far as I have ever talked with them on the subject after we have captured them, have indicated to me that they believe it is a conscience which balks them."

NOT ALWAYS A DEFECT.
"It is not always by reason of a defect that a counterfeit is detected. Sometimes suspicion is raised merely by an indefinable feeling on the part of the teller or bank employee that a bill or coin does not look or feel right, and then an examination discloses the fatal error.

"Even the most expert engravers," Mr.
Hazen said, "and it is of course, is well known that some of the best have gone into the counterfeit work, cannot get the perfect results which can readily be had in legitimate work. With counterfeit bills it is the same as with notes and coins."

ONE REMARKABLE CASE.
"One of the most remarkable cases occurred with the counterfeiting of the old United States 7-30s by the notorious Brooklyn-Smith gang. One of the members of that gang got into some misadventure, and was sent to Washington and picked out the spurious from the good bonds, for the Government experts themselves could not do it at first.

"He said that at some point or other conscience was sure to prevent him from making a perfect job at a counterfeit work.
The only error in these plates was in the litho work border. Up in one corner of this border the counterfeit was uniform in its lines.

HAD CURIOUS EXPERIENCE.
"Thomas Johnson, now dead, had a curious experience with his plates. He made five plates, and one wrong in some minor particular. In one plate the error was in the right eye, which was so drawn that it gave the portrait the appearance on close examination of being cross-eyed.

"He said that when he was making that part of the plate he was frightened by some noise, a thing that would not have bothered him in the least if he was at honest work, as he was an expert engraver. Had it not been for this error the plate would have been a finer one than the Government used, for it gave a clearer impression."

MISPELLED WORDS.
"A person would scarcely believe that a five-dollar bill with the word 'owing' spelled 'ownig' could get into circulation, but this happened with a bank note counterfeited after one of the Tammany Pa. bank. In another instance the word 'thousand' came out on the counterfeit 'thousand'."

Keep Yourself Strong
And you will ward off colds, pneumonia, fevers
